

LOTS OF PEOPLE tell him many things. The MAA helps him square away his gear.

IN THE PERSONNEL OFFICE his record is checked and he gets his new liberty card.

"WHAT, AGAIN?" His sea-bag is given a check for completeness.

LECTURES BY OFFICERS consume a lot of his time during the week of indoctrination. He listens to the First Lieutenant, the Legal Officer, the Chaplain, the Training Officer, the Chief Master-at-Arms, and many others tell him about the ship.

A NEW DIVISION OFFICER, and a new job. His new petty officers now begin the training that will make him a real part of the ROCHESTER's crew, doing one of the jobs that keep the ship moving. Shortly after his permanent assignment is made, he reports to the Training Office, where he gets a Seaman's Manual and signs up for his first Navy correspondence course. In the course of his Naval career, if he takes advantage of his opportunities, the boot can advance up the ladder to chief petty officer or officer level.
